HellermannTyton now sole UK distributor of CableSolve

HellermannTyton has entered into an agreement with Cormant Technologies to become the sole UK distributor of Cormant Technologies' CableSolve Intelligent Infrastructure management (IIM) software, alongside HellermannTyton's own iD software.

The companies already have strong links: HellermannTyton and Cormant first joined forces in 2005 to develop iD, a unique IIM system using portable barcode identification technology based on the already established CableSolve solution. This meant the integration of HellermannTyton's new iD series of Category 5e and Category 6 bar-coded products with a version of Cormant's CableSolve Connectivity and Infrastructure management (CIM) software.

HellermannTyton's Managing Director, Ewan Wilson, said: "Both HellermannTyton and Cormant believe that the presence and depth of HellermannTyton will help develop both CableSolve and iD in the UK market to the benefit of all partners.

"HellermannTyton has the expertise and resources in place for pre and post sales support of iD and CableSolve, and we are committed to leveraging this expertise to support Cormant's existing partners, independent of any cabling system, alongside established HellermannTyton customers."
